Nixon orders Scrantonian to coordinate flood relief

WILKES-BARRE — Frank Carlucci, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), was sent to the flood stricken Wyoming Valley Saturday by President Nixon to help coordinate federal flood assistance programs.

Carlucci, a Scranton native, said his immediate goal is to make certain every flood victim will have a permanent or temporary home by the end of September.

He told newsmen Nixon, "has been very deeply concerned about the problems of this area right from the outset and is confident the valley will recover fully."

"I also want to assure you that the federal government is doing everything possible to help the valley recover as quickly as possible," he said.

Carlucci's appointment follows Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney's visit to the Wilkes-Barre area.

Secretary Romney recommended that President Nixon send someone to Wilkes-Barre to insure that some 20 federal agencies involved in the disaster effort perform to the maximum and with coordination.

In a written report to Nixon, Romney said, "The President should appoint a federal disaster director for Luzerne County with complete authority over the total federal effort in this disaster area. It should be made known to all federal officials that he reports directly to the President."

"The unprecedented dimensions of the disaster, particularly in this geographical area (Luzerne County), required unprecedented action on the part of the federal government, including the mobilization of resources inside and outside the Wyoming Valley area."

Before leaving for the Wilkes-Barre area, Carlucci met for 90 minutes with President Nixon to discuss the coordination of the federal flood recovery program.

Carlucci said Saturday night he had not yet conferred with Gov. Milton J. Shapp, but intended to do so as soon as possible. "I'm at his disposal," he said.

GOP warned against being overconfident

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole said Sunday that President Nixon should campaign as if he were "just one vote ahead" and warned the GOP not to underestimate George S. McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate.

Dole said once the National Convention renominates Nixon, the President should go "out on the hustings" in a highly-active campaign for a second term.

"I agree with Clark McGregor (chairman of the Committee to Reelect the President) that he should run as if he were just one vote ahead," Dole said. "I would travel about the country. If I were advising the President, I'd be out on the hustings."

The party chairman told a news conference the kind of campaign he favors would emphasize that "we should never be overconfident. We are the minority party. We have to attract Democrats and Independents."

"I don't take McGovern lightly. . . . I once did," he said, adding that it would be a mistake to be lulled by Nixon's large lead in the public opinion polls.

He rejected the idea of a Nixon-McGovern debate, however, saying that the Democratic nominee had gotten enough free publicity.

The news conference came on the eve of hearings by the platform and rules committees preliminary to the opening of the convention itself a week from Monday. Nixon will be renominated that Tuesday and make his acceptance speech Wednesday after Spiro T. Agnew again is tapped as his running mate.

Dole said there was "no question" the Vietnam war would be an issue in the campaign and added "if they (the Democrats) want to make it an issue, we'll meet them head on."

Dole derided Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver for claiming that Nixon forfeited a "golden opportunity" to end the war in 1969.

"Shriver clings desperately to his incredible story in the apparent-but equally incredible —hope that he can make of the war which the Democrats started a winning campaign issue against the Republican administration that is ending it."

Dole added "if there was a golden opportunity, the last administration should have seized it."

He pointed out Shriver was in the (Kennedy administration

"during the takeoff and he was around during the whole escalation. I can't specify what he did but he was part of the administration."

At another news conference, Chairman John J. Rhodes of the Republican platform committee said McGovern's proposed defense spending cuts would make the United States a second-rate power that would have difficulty even defending Hawaii.

Rhodes specifically denied charges by Rep. Donald Riegle of Michigan that he and Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California were relegated to testifying before platform subcommittees where their antiwar views would not attract as much notice as at televised sessions of the full committee.

Clark describes extensive bombing damage by U.S.

BANGKOK (UPI) — Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, returning from an inspection tour of North Vietnam, said Sunday he saw extensive damage, including damage to dikes, from U. S. bombing raids. He said the bombing could not be justified.

"I've seen more apartments, villages, dikes and sluices destroyed than I ever want to see again," Clark said during a brief stopover enroute home from Hanoi.

"I do know that in human terms, the bombing I've seen is without justification no matter what the cause and purpose."

Clark, who served as attorney general under President Lyndon B. Johnson, said he will disclose information he gathered on American bombing after reaching the United States.

"I have a fairly definite idea of what it's all about as far as bombing of the dikes goes," he said. "On whether or not the bombing is deliberate I will expand my views when I get back to the United States."

The United States has denied American warplanes deliberately bombed North Vietnamese dikes.

Clark left Hanoi Saturday and flew from Rangoon to Bangkok Sunday morning to board a flight for San Francisco, where he has scheduled a news conference today.

Although quoted extensively by Radio Hanoi on several occasions during his visit, Clark said he avoided formal statements in North Vietnam. "I'm an American. I was born in America and I'm going to die in America, and I want to make my report on American soil."

Clark said he wanted to digest information gathered in two weeks of traveling in North Vietnam as well as give administration officials in Washington a chance to give him their side of the issue before publicly detailing his conclusions.

But, he said, "on dikes themselves in at least three places I could see the results of bombing. . . . I saw dikes that unquestionably had been subjected to bombing or shelling of a variety of sorts."

POWs reported in good health

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride said Sunday he interviewed three American prisoners of war in Hanoi last week and found them to be in good health and uncomplaining.

"I saw three prisoners," said MacBride, chairman of Amnesty International. "They were in absolutely good health and absolutely free to talk, to say what they liked."

"We had tea and some biscuits, and gossiped away to a certain extent. . . . they said their treatment was much better than they had ever hoped for."

MacBride identified the three as: —Cmdr. Walter Eugene Wilbur, Rte 3, Columbia Cross Roads, Pa., captured June, 1968.

—Maj. Edward K. Jellias, Alton, Ill., captured April, 1972.

—Capt. William Glynn Byrnes, 14806 B Stratford Court, Bridgeton, Mo., captured May 23, 1972.

"Why they looked healthier, more rosy-cheeked, than either you or me," said MacBride, 64, pointing at a young newsmen.

He said the three prisoners reported they were permitted to receive one letter and one small parcel per month and to send one letter each month.

"Food and medical services were fine, they told me," MacBride said.

Burger predicts court load may topple judicial system

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger says the nation's courts at every level are being swamped by too many cases and the judicial system may break down unless the situation is remedied.

Burger, in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report published Sunday, commented: "They are certainly being called on to do more than their resources permit. This is true from the bottom of the pyramid, in the minor-offense state and local courts, right straight up to the Supreme Court."

"With few exceptions, every level of the judiciary has more work than it can properly handle."

He noted that in 1959 the Supreme Court had 2,178 cases on its docket and disposed of 1,822 of them while 10 years later the docket list rose to 4,202 cases with 3,500 dispositions.

Burger suggested doing away with three-judge federal district courts to give individual judges more time to deal with cases of their own.

The chief justice said direct appeals stemming from use of the three-judge courts amounted to 22 per cent of the Supreme Court's case load in recent years.

Burger suggested swifter trial procedures would reduce crime.

"If we could see to it that every person arrested would be brought to trial within six weeks or 60 days," he said, "you would see a downturn in crime, if for no other reason than you'd have these people off the street that much sooner and the swiftness of society's response would itself have a deterrent impact."

Of his three years as Chief Justice, Burger commented: "I would say perhaps there has been some change in emphasis but not a basic change in direction. It doesn't seem to me to be the appropriate function of the Supreme Court to have what is called a direction. It smacks too much of a doctrinaire approach."

He also added: "I think it will take more than three years to discern whether any shorthand term can properly be used to characterize the present court."

Burger indicated no enthusiasm for proposals that all federal judges be subject to review by the Senate every 10 years.

"I suspect it would not promote an independent judiciary," he said.

Hobo king sobers up for reign

BRITT, Iowa (UPI)—The Hardrock Kid, who said he sobered up just for the occasion, began his reign Sunday as King of the Hoboes.

Hardrock, also known as John Misen, 68, won the title for the fifth time on Saturday. He was awarded its soiled purple cape and coffee can crown during Britt's 39th annual National Hobo Convention.

He didn't have much to say for his subjects, declaring himself "one of the few bona fide hoboes left," sporting that most of the so-called kings of road nowadays are "just tramps and wobblers."

Not so in the old days, Hardrock declared, "when the real hoboes used to come here."

Special Pocono Record Report

Inside Nationalist China

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Record readers today will get a glimpse of life in Nationalist China, through a four part series of articles by Helmut Kimpel, public affairs editor of another Ottawa group paper, who recently returned from a two-week study mission on Taiwan.

Kimpel's stories on life in contemporary Taiwan — on subjects ranging from foreign policy to mounting domestic concern over a burgeoning prostitution problem begin on page three of today's edition of the Pocono Record. Kimpel's stories, with photos, have been provided through the Ottawa News Service, the group's own supplemental news and feature service.

Kimpel's trip to the Island nation was arranged and financed by the Taiwanese (Republic of China) government. The veteran newsmen — who is public affairs editor of the Middletown (N.Y.) Times Herald-Record — accepted the offer on condition that he be granted absolute freedom to report what he saw and learned on the embattled island nation of the coast of China.

Kimpel reports the government apparently lived up to the letter and spirit of the agreement, though he acknowledges he can't be absolutely certain, since he sometimes had to rely on a government-supplied interpreter to help him conduct interviews.

In any event, Kimpel's series emerges as a vivid picture of a plucky little nation determined to hold to its own identity and continue as a significant factor in world markets.

Born in Germany, Kimpel is no stranger to international affairs. He has traveled widely throughout the world, including the Far East. Previous to his joining the Times Herald-Record in 1965, his career included a three-year stint as a political affairs specialist with the U.S. Department of State in Germany. In addition, he served for four years as an accredited observer to the United Nations for the International Council of Industrial Editors.

Fires rage in Northwest

SEATTLE — Hundreds of timber and brush fires, including one sparked by an erupting volcano, burned Sunday across the tinder dry forests of the West. Firefighting officials flew crews in from as far away as Georgia and Alaska to the Pacific Northwest to battle lightning-caused fires and said most were under control. But the respite was not expected to last long. "Until we can get some rain, this is going to continue," said a harried spokesman in Washington state. In Hawaii, a 650-acre brush fire was started in the Naulu Forest on the island of Hawaii by a slight volcanic eruption Poliokeawe Pali, about 35 miles from Hilo. Rangers said favorable winds were containing the blaze, which posed no threat.

Ammunition dumps blown up

SAIGON — Enemy troops blew up ammunition dumps and bridges near Saigon and Da Nang. Taking advantage of security gaps created by withdrawal of U.S. ground combat forces, enemy troops with explosives strapped to their backs slipped into a U.S. base at Long Binh and a smaller base near Saigon, setting two ammunition dumps afire. They also blew up a culvert northwest of Saigon and mined a bridge outside Da Nang. The Long Binh ammunition dump had been turned over to the South Vietnamese, who were responsible for guarding it. Losses were believed to be substantial.

Bullet-riddled bodies found

BELFAST — Burtally beaten, bullet-riddled bodies of two men were found in Belfast, Northern Ireland. Police said the deaths raised to 55 the number of "obviously sectarian vendetta assassinations." The British overlord for Ulster, William Whitelaw, pushed ahead with plans to hold a planned conference on Northern Ireland's future. But political sources predicted a bomb blitz would be unleashed by Irish Republican Army guerrillas seeking to torpedo the parley.

Government critics arrested

NEPAL — Nepal arrested four leading critics in an apparent crackdown on mounting political opposition in the Himalayan kingdom. The most prominent of those arrested was a former prime minister who Saturday staged a rally at which he called for removal of Prime Minister Kirti Nidhi Bista. The others arrested attended the rally and also spoke against the government.

Chess game postponed

REYKJAVIK — The 14th world chess game was postponed in Reykjavik, Iceland, after a doctor examined Soviet champion Boris Spassky. There wasn't any word on the nature of Spassky's complaint, but it's generally accepted a player may ask for a postponement if he's feeling overtired and under strain. Spassky is trailing American challenger Bobby Fischer, 8-5. (Details on page 2.)

Taiwan's people, culture, linked to industrial world

EDITOR'S NOTE: Helmut Kimpel of Ottaway News Service reports on a two-week study tour of Taiwan, the Republic of China, in the first of a four part series of articles.

By HELMUT KIMPEL
Ottaway News Service

TAIPEI — When in Taiwan, do as the Chinese do — to paraphrase a Roman saying — that is, be patient and wait until the rain stops.

Somewhat, it never seemed to stop during the first week while I toured this subtropical island 100 miles off the shores of Communist China's mainland.

The Taiwanese joke about the rain, claiming that "when it's raining cats and dogs, not even the Communists want to take our island."

I had encountered the beginning of the four-month-long typhoon season in following an invitation of the Republic of China's government to see the small country myself, talk to as many of its 15 million people as is humanly possible during a two-week stay, and get a feeling of their ambitions to "free" their 750 million neighbors across the Taiwan Strait.

Getting to talk with an honorable fu wei wren — meaning a plain, average taxpayer — was no difficulty. And they, like their counterparts in the United States, love to gripe about rising taxes.

Because I understand neither Chinese nor Taiwanese, a major dialect, I was assigned a 25-year-old escort, Johnny J. Sand, one of a handful of public relations officers the government's information office provides for official guests. Johnny literally sweated his way through dozens of interviews with farmers and factory workers whenever I asked to stop at a roadside while the humidity was 90 per cent.

But I had little trouble in talking directly with local reporters, high school and college students, and most government and military officials, because most of them have at least a working knowledge of English.

And in the case of watching a Chinese girl painter taking art lessons, the interview was held in German — my native tongue — which she was studying at the Chengchi University in Taipei.

Like a hill of ants, Taiwan's people are constantly on the move, be they vendors peddling containers of soft drinks through Taipei's teeming traffic, cab drivers tooting their horns for prospective fares, or the uniformed thousands who work in shifts at huge assembly plants across the country to convert raw materials into finished products for export.

Laced with highways and high-voltage power lines which reach 97 per cent of its population, the country has shed much of its past, such as the bureaucratic remnants from 50 years of Japanese occupation until 1945. Yet, the people cling almost stubbornly to a traditional respect for the virtues of family life and law and order — except for traffic laws and sexual prohibitions. (But, more of that in a later story.)

Thus, when Taipei's police chief, Wang Lu-chiao, prohibited male Chinese from wearing shoulder-long hair, the parents of a few who dared to grow long hair sighed with relief. For a while, the six-month-old order, which police enforced also in other cities, applied even to foreign visitors arriving at Taipei's airport. Long-haired foreign students were reportedly asked to have their hair cut at the airport's barber shop at the government's expense. Two who refused were returned to Tokyo.

None of the young Chinese I asked at a university campus or in coffee houses, were they listened to a mixture of western and Chinese pop music, considered the police chief's order an infringement on their basic rights.

Said several girls: "We like our boy friends better with short hair and clean-shaven."

And clean-shaven they get. There's a barber shop on almost every block, down to the smallest village, staffed mostly by young girls who cut your hair, wash, rinse and dry it, and shave your whole face, forehead, nose and all, for 75 cents, which includes the usual 10 per cent service charge or tip.

Americans may envy Taiwan for a different reason: It has practically no drug problem.

Being an island of the size of Massachusetts and Connecticut combined, about 230 miles long and 90 miles wide, police told me they have a fairly easy task of controlling incoming drug traffic.

The few known drug users are mostly prostitutes in the Peitou district, a suburb of Taipei, and in Kaohsiung's seamen quarters.

The penalties for convicted drug pushers are severe, including two death sentences during the past two years.

The largest case Taipei police cracked involved eight persons of three different nationalities who tried to smuggle about 10 pounds of heroin into the country on April 27. Sentences ranged from five to 15 years, with a minimum of three to eight years to be served.

Hoing, weeding eliminated

Tomatoes grow on rug

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

EFFORT — Got a used rug? Don't throw it away — you may be able to grow some tomatoes on it!

Effort resident James R. Lytle tried the innovative idea and now has five-foot high tomato plants that are more than four feet in diameter.

Predicting that each of his five plants will probably yield a bushel of tomatoes, Lytle, a former marine engineer who was born in California, said he just couldn't believe how big the plants were.

"What gets me is that there are so darn many tomatoes on the plants and all the other farmers are having trouble this year," The man who owns the greenhouse where I bought the plants came here and looked at them and spent an hour trying to tell me how and why this couldn't be done!"

In his jovial sailor's tone, Lytle explained how he started his unusual garden.

"I laid the rug upside down on the grass and just poked five small holes through it with a small coal chisel," he said. "I put the tomato plants through the holes and into the ground and that's all I did."

"I never watered them, sprayed them, hoed them or anything and they're five foot high," he added. "The rug holds the moisture, the dead grass below acts as fertilizer and my theory is that bugs must crawl on the ground and get up to the plants from there."

"I've never been bothered with any vermin or bugs, I think because the rug is down."

Another advantage Lytle sighted to the rug trick was that hoeing and weeding were not necessary. He said that he built five large tri-pod tomato stakes to hold up the plants, when he first laid down the rug, however.

"I read the idea years ago in a copy of Plowman's Folly," said the Effort resident. "The idea has been so successful that next year I am going to plant cabbage, peppers and other plants on rugs."

Lytle said many passersby have stopped to inquire about the giant plants. "Everybody thinks I'm half crooked," he said.

Lytle admitted that the rug growing idea had been in his mind for years, and said he wasn't quite sure if it would work or not. Commenting that he just "picked up any old kind of tomato plants at a nearby greenhouse, he said frankly: "If there's one thing I'm not, it's a farmer."

"This is the silliest thing," said he wife. "We were just going to give the rug away after we had some new tile installed. I look out the window and I can't believe what I see."

In their final comments, the Effort couple said area residents had suggested that they put a teepee in between the large plants and look for a cigar store Indian to sell their tomatoes.

"Somebody else told me I should put up tables and salt and pepper shakers in the middle of the tomato patch," said Lytle. "The sign would read all the tomatoes you can eat for a quarter."

West End wanderings

Covered bridges

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — When most West End residents pass through that romantic covered bridge in Little Gap, they probably never give a thought to the many kisses that were stolen under those wooden timbers in years gone by.

In the horse and wagon days, lovers took advantage of a covered bridge to steal an all too infrequent kiss, and children played in them frequently on rainy days. Youngsters often times would hold their breath going through the bridge and hope their secret wish would come true.

Wooden bridges became plentiful because they were cheaper to build than stone constructions, although fire was responsible for the destruction of a great many of the wooden structures.

For this reason, signs prohibiting smoking were posted at the bridge entrances, and early speed limit signs warned against "driving faster than a walk."

Although not applied to the interior of the Little Gap bridge, advertising posters were usually plentiful inside the structures. Because they were shielded from the weather, the posters retained their advertising value for years.

Many of the early bridges were painted; the structures were of many different types.

Some of the bridges looked like a barn with two open ends; some structures — called double barrel bridges — had two lanes.

Latticed openings in the sides of the bridge let in light and supposedly "discouraged robbers." Other bridges looked like a double deck ferry boat while some resembled giant house boats.

Initially the bridges were completely boarded up and were dark tunnels. After the coming of the automobile, however, sidings were removed for better visibility.

Newer structures were constructed with windows or lattice work.

Flood insurance born of disaster

You have to search hard to find blessings left by the Agnes flood but one of them is action by local governments to make it possible for those who want it to get flood insurance.

The biggest investment most of us ever make is in our home and we protect ourselves with available insurance — which most of us, happily, never have to use. But carriers want no part of flood insurance because it is so obviously high risk in so many places.

Uncle Sam, however, has come to the rescue as he has in almost every other way through the last 40 years to protect us from weaknesses in the system. He'll underwrite much of the risk in flood insurance which then can be placed by individuals with private companies.

It isn't automatic. Application for federal approval takes time and some funds to prepare maps and forms and this has caused most communities to procrastinate even in places like the Stroudsburgs where we had a minor disaster as recently as two years ago and a major one in 1955.

The desperate plight of neighbors along the Susquehanna and Chemung, however, has spurred our leadership to action. Within perhaps a few months flood insurance should be available for most of those who think they need it in our area.

Our hope is naturally that none will ever have to use it but experience tells us otherwise.

Perhaps it is best that mankind never be in complete control of Nature but it is surely best that we all have the best control possible of our own financial situation. Flood insurance increases chances of achieving that goal.

Interstate loophole

A move is afoot to standardize traffic laws in the 50 states and we hope it includes a sharing of information on violators as well.

Pennsylvania's point system deals severely with those convicted of violations and we must assume this leads to a degree of driving safety. But suppose a Pennsylvania driver is caught in a violation that takes place a few miles beyond the state borders on, say, Route 46 in New Jersey or the extension of I-81 into New York.

Ten to one the smiling magistrate will assure the Pennsylvania driver that such minor violation are not exchanged interstate. Nothing goes on the license.

Is the out-of-state violator in less need of attending traffic school than his neighbor convicted in his own state? Honestly now, this inequity should be ended.

Too much protection

Speaking of injustice, we sometimes wonder about the pressure to protect the consumer. Cars are supposedly made safer year by year and yet more lives are lost because of them year by year.

Quite obviously, it seems here, the problem 99 per cent of the time is how we abuse the car, not how it is built.

And then there's the current report by the U. S. Highway Safety Administration that tends to prove the maligned (and discontinued) Corvair is no more unstable than other cars of its same year and weight.

It was the supposed unsafe Chevy compact that got Ralph Nader & Co. started on safety half a decade ago. Next question: How many lives and limbs were saved by forcing the Corvair off the road? Reasonable answer today: probably none.

Light side

With Gene Brown

Back to humor

"Let's get married, Harry. I don't want to wait around until I'm 50 and have wrinkles, bags under my eyes and a pot belly!"

"Well, if that's the way you're going to look at 50, let's forget it!"

Too realistic for company

Some folks can't see any good in anything. Tell them life begins at 40 and they'll tell you so does arthritis.

They tell these in Indiana

"Cigarette, gramps?"

"No. Thank you, sonny."

"Off the weed for good?"

"No, sonny. For better! Smoked my first cigarette and kissed a girl for the first time — both on the same day."

"So?"

"So there's no need wasting time on them cigarettes."

Drummond Roundup

By TOM BRADEN
(Braden is substituting for the vacationing Roscoe Drummond)

WASHINGTON — Two incidents at the Democrats' second and "miniconvention" illustrated the fact that Democrats are united again.

The first came on the Ohio credentials challenge. The history of that challenge is not very pretty. It began at an Ohio caucus with a shouting match between the leader of the Ohio delegation, state AFL-CIO chief Frank Kelly, who is white and Rep. Louis Stokes, who is black. Stokes called Kelly a "racist bastard" and others shouted, "There goes Hitler," at Kelly when he stalked from the floor.

Stokes was angered because Kelly had ruled that, contrary to the vote of the delegation, Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio would become a member of the national committee instead of a black state senator named Jackson.

The reason, Kelly said, was that he had to abide by the McGovern rules. If he put another black on the delegation, he argued, blacks would have more representation than their population in the state warranted.

Sharp twist

It was a sharp twist on the convention guidelines, which stipulate that blacks, women and youth must have representation in fair proportion to the population. The rules don't say anything about having more than a fair share, and so Kelly had a point, even if it was a nasty one.

But the credentials committee overruled him and when it went to a floor vote, there was only a scattering of support for him. Kelly was even denied the privilege of making his case.

Similarly, one delegate rose to bring up the embarrassing question of Mayor Daley, whose men had been seated at the miniconvention by order of an Illinois state court. The chair ruled him out of order in a hurry. When he tried for a vote to overrule the chair, he couldn't even get a second to his motion.

HARRISBURG — Now that the national Democratic Party slating is finally completed, it will be interesting to see what pattern the presidential run for the roses takes in Pennsylvania over the next 100 days.

The selection of R. Sargent Shriver as running mate to Senator George McGovern no doubt will heighten Gov. Milton J. Shapp's enthusiasm to beat the Keystone bushes for Democratic votes between now and November.

Sen. McGovern, it will be remembered, was not Shapp's first choice to head his party's race for the presidency. The governor cast his personal endorsement to Sen. Edmund Muskie, only to see it spurned by fellow Democrats at the primary election. They opted for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Pennsylvania McGovernites were bitter at the governor for jumping on the Muskie bandwagon far in advance of the April balloting.

The next three months will determine if the rift has closed between Shapp and Pennsylvania backers of the South Dakota senator.

Shriver helps

It would appear that annointment of Shriver as the vice presidential candidate will go far to restore harmony between Shapp and the McGovern people.

Looking back to late 1971 and early 1972, it should be kept in mind that Gov. Shapp never denied that Sen. Ted Kennedy would have been his personal choice to carry the Democratic Party's presidential warclub.

But of course Kennedy staunchly opposed any effort to launch a campaign drive on his behalf and reiterated this position in turning down the vice presidential offering a couple of times in recent weeks.

It should follow, then, that Shriver's valuable link with the Kennedy family through

In other words, the mood of this second-chance convention was quite clear: Let's cut out the bickering, stop the disputes and get to work on the campaign.

The reason for the mood was not so much that the delegates were longtime McGovern backers. In fact, since the Miami Beach convention, many of the party regulars have moved back in. They cared more about such honors as posts on the national committee than the younger McGovern delegates did.

The reason was that the last two weeks have been so embarrassing to Democrats that there was a kind of unspoken and unanimous consent to back McGovern and whatever McGovern wanted. It was time to quit fooling around. As Rep. Stokes remarked of his quarrel with Kelly, "When we get mad we say a lot of things, but we haven't got time to stay mad. This election is right around the corner."

Preference forgotten

The blacks at the miniconvention would have preferred Hubert Humphrey as the vice-presidential nominee rather than Sargent Shriver. The party regulars would have preferred Edmund Muskie. But they couldn't bring themselves to make an argument against Shriver. In the first place, they bore him no ill will. More important, they realized that the time for argument was gone.

So the Democrats will be more united against Richard Nixon than anybody could have dreamed a week ago. Of the old coalition which has so long held the party together, Nixon can hope to make inroads only in labor and in New York's Jewish vote. Even in these two blocs he cannot expect; he can only hope. And against defections from the old coalition, McGovern hopes to recoup by bringing to the polls for the first time the massive forces of the young.

Republicans, of course, will be united, too. But it would be unwise to give away odds on Richard Nixon. As between relatively united Democrats and united Republicans, this election, like the last one, will go to the wire.

The Pennsylvania Story

Democratic stakes

marriage and governmental background would be of some consolation to Shapp.

There is no doubt the governor and his Democratic colleagues have their work cut out for them in the Pennsylvania battleground.

The polls place President Nixon ahead of McGovern; developments at the foreign and domestic levels seem to smile upon the incumbent and the governor faces a balky Democratic mayor in all-important Philadelphia which has given solid majorities to every Democratic candidate since 1932.

Rizzo's defection

But this year, Mayor Frank Rizzo makes no secret about his support for Republican President Nixon, a factor which must be sending chills up and down the collective Democratic spine in Pennsylvania.

If Rizzo's political attitude causes his city to fall into the Republican ranks, it could have more impact than at just the national level. Also at stake are the two statewide fiscal offices (auditor general and treasurer) now controlled by Democrats. Philadelphia is so heavily populated that a switch to Republicanism in balloting could tip the scales in those two races.

Nor to be forgotten are the campaigns for all the state House of Representative seats and half those in the state Senate. Here, of course, the major issue is voter reaction to the Shapp Administration's tax program over the past two years.

These various factors serve to point up the necessity of quick peace-making at the state Democratic level if Pennsylvania is to repeat its 1968 showing of support for the Democratic presidential candidate.

The selection of Shriver as the number two candidate certainly won't hurt that mellowing process.

By ALAN GOULD JR.

It is natural to be indignant when someone you don't even know presumes to tell the world that you're less than perfect.

We admit our imperfections to our friends who presumably understand and even recognize our oft-feeble efforts to correct our inadequacies. But let a stranger tell us off, one like the Council on Environmental Quality, and the hair rises on the back of our necks.

Well, so much for the initial reaction to the incomplete CEQ chapter on the Delaware River. Like the kid who gave his careless girl friend a deodorant soap, the CEQ makes a lot of sense.

Everyone seemed to agree that the Tocks dam would boost the local economy (applause!) but many have never been sure that they would like the changes forced on the community (hesitation...). And some were sure from the start that we'd be better off left alone with the Delaware River area enjoyed by the few and the rest content, as the CEQ report says, to be "left out of the mainstream of American progress."

Great for living — and visiting

Not a bad place to be that "out of the mainstream" — if you want to take a vacation or establish a summer home. Only the opportunity to escape in the Poconos was not exactly a secret. Many knew and they were about to tell many, many more.

A few people made small personal fortunes in the sale of open land to developers who, in turn, are making much greater fortunes in resale.

For each person who has lived "out of the mainstream" for years in the Poconos there are hundreds who have lived "in the mainstream", suffering the inconvenience but making the bigger buck. Clutching their money, they have been lured by ads in metropolitan newspapers and by mail solici-

Jim Bishop

Newspaper photographers were always a special breed. Years ago, an apprentice needed only to be half nuts and half artist to make the grade. That and a 4x5 Speed Graphic was all he required to work on a good paper. If, in addition, he had an intuitive animosity toward spelling and an active distaste for learning the names of his subjects on a left-to-right basis, he was a superb photographer.

A lensman had certain inalienable rights on any newspaper. No matter how simple the assignment, he was permitted to tell the picture editor that: (1). It was impossible to make this particular shot; (2). The light was lousy; the weather impossible and besides, we already had two dozen shots of that politician in the morgue.

In this kind of weather, picture assignment editors often sent a man out at noon and said: "Bring back a hot weather picture." This meant that the flick flack had to devise his own shot. Tom Watson of The News and Emil Herman of the Mirror met on one hot summer day — both out to get how weather photos.

They were competitors, so they adjourned to a tavern to discuss the weighty matter. After a dozen beers, both were assailed by a brilliant flash that, if they could get the bartender to hold his head under the beer spigot, with the foam running down the sides of his head, they would have an immortal photograph.

The bartender, a fourth-grade dropout, said sure. They made the picture, and both went back to their papers whistling. Unfortunately, the work of art was never seen. Both forgot to pull the slide out.

Bottled inspiration

It should not be assumed that newspaper photographers are addicted to booze. A few El Belto's, as Jim Kilgallen called them, never hurt a cameraman, but they didn't help either. We had an artistic photog in New York who was asked to get a shot of a Swedish channel swimmer.

His pride was hurt when he tried to make a photo of her sitting in an easy chair. So he asked her to remove her emcumbrances and hop into the bathtub. She did. His problem was that he tried to hop in with her and she landed a solid right to his jaw which bent his right eye and broke his lens.

Tommy Flanagan was assigned to get a lobby shot of 600 imported canaries in Loew's State. The movie was "The Canary Murder Case." Flanagan, who had a routine breakfast

Aspirin a help

What does a buffering agent do if it is added to aspirin? Does it mean this combination is safe for people with stomach ulcers?

Mr. R.T., Del.

Dear Mr. T.:

Aspirin is still considered one of the best analgesics or pain relievers. Sometimes it is combined with phenacetin and caffeine. Buffering agents such as magnesium oxide, aluminum, and some carbonates are said to reduce the acidity of aspirin and prevent some of the irritation of the stomach lining.

It is wrong to believe that aspirin in combination with other drugs or when buffered can be taken safely by people who have stomach ulcers. When any drugs are purchased over-the-tion to visit the Poconos and buy a piece of land out of the mainstream.

Others who have come among us built resorts or expanded those already on their property. Millions of visitors come every year.

Land values are up, people are here. Wonderful for business, great for jobs. But warnings about lack of planning were almost completely ignored for years as the land rush and building boom went on.

The state produced a law that was supposed to force a sewer plant on, for one, Mt. Pocono, half a decade ago. Then within the last year it has added some teeth that should force developers to sell lots of no less than an acre unless central sewage disposal is supplied.

The developers, many of whom have no local allegiance except for the property they're peddling, are only slightly shaken. Many are concerned with finding ways around the law rather than admitting its wisdom and the need to preserve their product — the healthy, clean Poconos.

Sewer systems needed

A belated analysis must seem inclined to accept is that almost 90 per cent of Monroe County land is unsuited for permanent sewage disposal via septic tanks. And except for the Stroudsburgs, and a couple of resort communities, nobody has any more than that.

People like Doug Williams, Len Zolkowski before him, the sometimes embattled county Planning Commission and TIRAC have been trying to provide leadership that has been resisted. Jules Marron, about to become TIRAC director, boils it down in his assessment of the CEQ report: We've been telling the people about this, he said, "They have to ask themselves: what kind of a community do I want to live in?"

Now that we've digested our indignation, the answer is as obvious as the means is not.

of four whiskeys, two beers and an egg, filled an old flashpan with powder. When he pulled the trigger, there was a mighty boom and 600 canaries dropped dead in the bottom of their cages.

Flanagan insisted it wasn't his fault. "It was 600 simultaneous heart attacks," he said. Izzy Kaplan was the only cameraman who had the nerve to ask Queen Marie of Rumania: "How about zitting on the rail and showing a leetle leg — woota you say, Queenie?"

Kaplan had a figure akin to a basketball with a French pea on top. A showgirl charged him with trying to assault her in a dark room. The entire city room attended the trial, and stuck Izzy for the lunch. The judge took one look at the defendant, yawned and murmured: "Utterly impossible. Case dismissed."

Office in tavern

Freddie Klein was the only nut who established his own office in a tavern and trained the lobster trick editor to phone him there. Freddie also had an 18-foot boat tied up to a pier and, when work was done, he got in it and, with the aid of an outboard, hummed down to Sea Bright, N.J., through mountainous seas, armed only with a case of beer.

Once, he heard that the color department wanted to make a shot of Eddie Cantor holding the bridle reins of a horse while a gorgeous damsel sat sidesaddle. "It just so happens," he said, "that I know where there is a horse."

Off he went, and he and the horse cantered up 45th Street the wrong way on a one-way street. Klein was sober, but the horse wasn't. Four men pushed the big nag into a freight elevator and he was beset with the nervous whinnies.

At the sixth floor, they took him off and led him down a hall to the color studio. In the gleaming corridor, the horse forgot all his good manners. Klein was leading him when it happened, and it sounded as though the nag had seven hooves.

When Emil Herman was ready with his camera, Eddie Cantor posing beaming, the girl sitting prettily on the horse, Freddie Klein casually phoned the janitor and said: "Come up to the sixth floor and clean the corridor."

The man was an immigrant. No one told him what to expect. He took a frightened look at what was in the hall, and had a heart attack. In those days, cameramen had brilliance and originality. Sometimes it only required a year or two for them to learn that you can shoot a four-alarm fire at night without using a flashbulb.

counter by people who have ulcers or who have recently had surgery, it is important to be sure that aspirin or salicylic acid are not hidden ingredients.

There are now a number of excellent pain killers that accomplish the same purpose as aspirin but without its disadvantages to people with stomach ulcers.

Participants earn awards

Camp Moll ends summer season

By JOE MIEGOC
Pocono Record Reporter

MOUNT BETHEL — Love, as in abundance at Camp Moll as campers and counselors marked the end of the camp's eighth annual six-week summer season with an awards ceremony and a day carnival.

Awards were presented Thursday in various categories to campers as they sat under the shade of an apple grove near the camp's pond. Campers hugged counselors in an attempt to show their love and appreciation for the counselor's efforts throughout the summer.

Many a camper ran and hugged a special counselor after receiving an award for being the "best story teller, best girl watcher, smallest camper with the largest lunch pail" and so on. Emotions ran high as the counselors returned their love of the campers with hugs and in many few cases, a flurry of kisses.

The camp, created for the purpose of providing enjoyment for needy children, celebrated its eighth anniversary since being built on 8 acres of land donated by the estate of the late Robert Moll in 1964.

Jim Kessler, past president of the Easton Area Jaycees, said the occasion was a special one to all of us concerned with the camp.

"We're overjoyed with our expanded camp, but we also realize the added responsibilities we must now assume. These new facilities are dedicated to those people who have given us their time and materials so this would be possible," he said.

Kessler dedicated the Robert F. Moll Playcenter prior to the beginning of the afternoon awards ceremony. We hope the people who enjoy this playcenter enjoy it as much as we enjoyed constructing it for them," he said.

A plaque commemorating the dedication of the new building will be shown on a display inside the center. The last line of the inscription on the plaque reads "We believe in service to the community as the best service of life," an inscription which Kessler said sums up the devotion of all area residents and Jaycee organizations to Camp Moll.

A swimming complex, donated by the camp's board of directors, was also constructed on the camp grounds.

Bob Lakey, camp director, later summed up his feelings about the work the camp counselors do to help at Camp Moll.

"The people who help us are just terrific. Their long work days run from sun-up to late at night, from the time the campers leave to come here until they arrive back home again. Without their unselfish help, we might not have as much to work with as we do now," he said.

The campers reciprocated their love for Bob Lakey by sketching a likeness of him and hanging it on the wall of the camp's arts and crafts center. The title of the sketch was "Pin the whistle on the director," a take-off on the ever-popular donkey party game.

A pony lazily trotted around the camp pond as campers strode one-by-one to the rostrum to receive their awards. Campers ran to their parents to show off their awards. One female camper was presented with the "blond bombshell award," another with the "fantastic fingernail award."

A total of 54 counselors helped out at one time or another at the camp this summer. The counselors helped the campers with arts and crafts projects, play games and lead the campers in group singing. Carol Abuzzese was named "Outstanding Counselor," while honorable mention went to Tim Wetmore, Lisa Barber, Sheena Harrison and Terry Price.

All counselors are younger people, some barely out of high school and others full-time college students. Three counselors, Terri Borowiak, Amy Jackowitz and Bruce Waldman, completed their fifth year as volunteers, while 13 others have participated three or more years.

The counselors felt equal joy when the campers strode forward to receive their awards, since those awards meant a fulfillment to the summer's work. Lakey praised the counselors as "wonderful kids doing a terrific job. They take care of the campers in a way you wouldn't believe," he said.

Closing out the day's festivities, campers joined a few counselors in a group song, "If I Had a Hammer." A line in the song goes "If I had a hammer, I'd hammer out the love between my brothers and my sisters." Thursday, they did just that.

Homecoming service set at Pocono Union

HENRYVILLE — Plans for the 132 annual homecoming service of the Pocono Union United Methodist Church are underway. It will be held Sept. 24 at 2:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Rev. Albert F. Bubel, former pastor of the church who now is pastor of the Cherry Lane and Ananiam United Methodist Churches.

There will be special music for homecoming when it is hoped that Grace Ludwig, former organist of the church, may assist organist Danny Chiodo.

A successful church bazaar was held on the church lawn for the expense fund, and a hymn sing featured Rev. David and Karen Brickley of Jim Thorpe. Rev. David E. Humphrey is pastor of the church.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Those of us whose television programs are channeled through Wilkes-Barre are kept up to date on the problems following the flood, now six weeks ago with monumental problems both municipal and personal still unresolved.

And those of us who lived through the local flood of 1955 and its aftermath can discern a common pattern. Even though that was on a smaller scale, individual losses in lives and property were as great.

During the flood and immediately afterward, there was almost a sense of euphoria: just being alive, working together with heroism, unselfishness and tremendous effort made you appreciate your common humanity. At first—

Then as the realization came that no matter how brave you'd been, no matter how hard you'd tried, no matter how many people had helped, things just weren't going back to being the same as they had been. Then the bitterness sets in, the sense of having been treated unfairly, the tendency to blame everybody else.

They have appeared in youth rallies, church campaigns on radio and TV in 49 of the 50 states and in 79 countries of the world which they have circled four times.

Reservations or cancellations should be made by calling 421-0328 or 476-0193.

It's a familiar pattern when tragedy strikes in individual lives as well as communities. Families can bear up bravely under the first shock of death, the funeral, adjusting to a changed standard of living, managing to do alone the things some one else had

Karen O'Neil married to law school student

STROUDSBURG — In an afternoon ceremony on Saturday, Aug. 12, at St. Luke's Catholic Church, Stroudsburg, Karen Ann O'Neil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. O'Neil of Norton Road, Stroudsburg, became the bride of John Albert Stets.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Stets of Hershey, formerly of Mount Pocono.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Michael McGinn. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza and Venise lace, trimmed and embroidered with daisy applique.

The dress featured a high neckline, long sleeves and chapel train. A Camelot hat of Venise lace held her chapel length veil.

Mrs. Daniel Blaschak attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Frank Doherty, Chicopee, Mass.; Mrs. Edward Ell Jr. and Mrs. Richard Tyra of Wilkes-Barre; Miss Karen Mangan of Carbondale.

Miss Carolyn Anne Stets of Hershey, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid.

They all wore dresses of white embroidered organza with rounded collars, full skirts and sleeves with large cuffs. Their white picture hats and flower baskets were each decorated with a different hue of the rainbow.

Patrick O'Neil was ringbearer for his sister.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Robert Stets of Hershey, as best man. Ushers were Daniel Blaschak, Gregory Stets, brother of the bridegroom, Edward Ell, Richard Tyra and Albert Snyder of Mount Pocono.

Lector at the mass was Thomas O'Neil Jr. Michael O'Neil and John Maloney, Pittsburgh, cousin of the bride, were acolytes. William Dimmick was soloist and Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis was organist.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of white embroidered voile and pink shantung with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of wisteria crepe with matching accessories.

The reception was held at Pocono Manor Inn with music provided by Tommy Cullens orchestra.

Mining to tourism

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — This famous ski resort was once a booming mine town. It became widely known in the latter part of the 19th century for its production of silver, lead and zinc.

They have appeared in youth rallies, church campaigns on radio and TV in 49 of the 50 states and in 79 countries of the world which they have circled four times.

Ann Landers

Facts about retarded

Dear Ann Landers: When most people learn you have a retarded child they tend to write him off as useless. Why isn't a better job of education done so the public will know that most retarded can look after their personal needs, do housework, make meals, sew, and even hold jobs.

Retarded people have different intelligence levels. Some are smarter than others, just like the non-afflicted. I have encountered a great number of people who are under the impression that all retarded children must be "put away." When I tell them our child lives at home and attends a special school they seem surprised and ask stupid questions like, "Can she learn anything?"

This special school takes children from 5 through 18. The ones who can, learn reading, writing and math. Those who aren't able to handle these subjects are given vocational training. Everyone moves at his own speed. The ones who are equal to specialized training "graduate" to a sheltered workshop to learn woodwork, commercial painting, farming, how to operate simple machines, braking, carpentry and handicrafts.

Please print my letter as a favor to all parents of retarded children who encounter so much ignorance from people who should know better.

Toronto Mother

Dear Mother: Here it is with my thanks. You have educated several million people today.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I just came home from seeing a movie which was extremely well done, very moving, marvelous acting, but full of violence and bloodshed. It left me deeply shaken.

I was disturbed by the reaction of the audience more than I was by the movie. A great many people laughed out loud during the scenes of violence and death. They also laughed during the sad parts. Why? I can't figure it out. Baffled in Binghamton

Dear Bing: Immature people who are unsure of how to react, often laugh. They can't handle deep emotion in the presence of others, so they depreciate their feelings by laughing.

In tense situations it is not uncommon to witness laughter — even at funerals. Comedy and tragedy are often divided by a fine line.

Erma Bombeck

Do not touch

There was always some comfort in the fact that although murder, rape, robbery and prostitution have been on the rise in this country for some time, one law has always held firm.

No one, but no one, was ever charged or convicted of ripping off a tag on their pillow that read, DO NOT REMOVE THIS TAG UNDER PENALTY OF LAW.

You could walk in the most elegant homes in the world, sink up to your supporters in carpet, drink coffee from bone china and have domestics falling all over themselves, but there was always that one common denominator: a limp tag flapping under the chair like a piece of dirty underwear.

As a bride, I imagined all sorts of things would happen to you if you ripped the tag off your pillows. The IRS will fine you. Senator Joe McCarthy put your name on a pink list under the glass on his desk. You were blackballed from joining the VFW and there was some rumor that you would not bear children for seven years.

One night my husband had a few drinks and threatened, "You know what I'm going to do? I'm gonna go in and rip the Do Not Remove tags from the pillows on our bed." A neighbor and I had to physically restrain him.

Now I read with some disbelief where the Department of Labor together with the upholstery and bedding advisory board have reworded the tag, THIS TAG NOT TO BE REMOVED EXCEPT BY CONSUMER.

Frankly, I don't know what the world is coming to. Today, the pillow tags. Tomorrow, we'll be opening asparagus right side up!

Oh, I'm not lily white by any means, mind you. I've done some pretty rotten things in my life. Once, I deliberately left the cover of a matchbook open while I lit a match. Another time when I thought no one was looking I sprayed whipped cream on my strawberries without first shaking the can. In moments of anger, I've even taken the cellophane off lampshades and purposely screwed lids in the opposite direction of the arrow.

But ripping the Do Not Remove tags from pillows. That's something else. After I read the story, I went to my room and shut the door. I pulled down the spread and held the pillow in my arms. Sliding my fingers along the seam I felt the tag. Gently, I wrapped my fingers around it and ripped it off.

At that precise moment, I heard a bolt of thunder, the cat ran under the bed and I saw small feathers oozing out of the seam where I had ripped the label.

I fell to my knees. "Bless me, Ralph Nader. I have sinned."

SPINAL CURVATURES
By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder D.C.

Curvatures of the spine begin, as a rule, in childhood and steadily progress from a minor problem to a real burden to the patient. Frequently curvatures exist without the patient realizing it and the symptoms that are felt are a result of the curvature producing abnormal stress and strain to the spine, and in many instances spinal nerve irritations.

Chiropractors are able to correct these curvatures, providing they have not progressed too far, that is, if the degree of curve is not so abnormal that the segments of the spine have lost part of their normal shape or size.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠

Opening lead — five of spades.

This deal arose in the U.S. — Germany clash in the 1968 World Bridge Olympiad. It illustrates the difficulty sometimes encountered in standard bidding methods in finding a 4-4 heart fit when it exists.

When Waldeck and Pressburger were North-South for Germany, the bidding went as shown. It was difficult for North to bid his woefully weak hearts when he had two other suits headed by the A-K, and it was similarly awkward for South to bid two hearts over two diamonds and thus conceal support for his partner's first-named suit.

So the German pair missed a good four heart contract without ever mentioning the suit, and suffered a slight further loss when East contested with three clubs, going down one — 50 points.

At the other table, the American North-South pair, Robinson and Jordan, found their heart fit quite easily. They made use of the so-called negative double to arrive at four hearts on this sequence:

The bidding:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠

Jordan's double was not for penalties; on the contrary, it announced four-card length in spades or hearts, possibly both, and 7 to 10 high-card points.

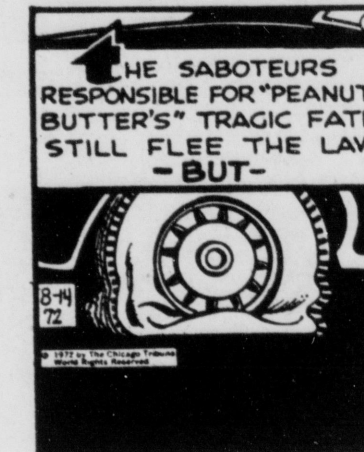

The negative double suited Robinson to a T, since he had good support for either major. When West intervened with three clubs, Robinson bid four of them to force South to select a major suit.
Jordan thereupon bid four hearts, which he easily made. The negative double, whatever its long-term advantage or disadvantage, was certainly effective in this deal.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column, designed to answer any questions or solve any problems (consumer, government or anything else) will appear every Monday on the first page of the second section. Send all questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions should be in writing and signed. No telephone calls, please.

Q. — How do I rid myself of bats between the attic wall and the shingles?

D.S., Brodheadsville.

A. — Apart from either tearing your roof or attic walls open and having them commercially exterminated there isn't much you can do about the problem. The only alternative we can offer is for you to check with local garden supply shops and obtain a good commercial rodent repellent. If you can apply these liberally in the attic or into the walls somehow it may drive them off. After they are gone, we suggest you find a contractor to replace the eaves and fender boards on the outside of your home to prevent them from returning. This can also be accomplished by screening the area off.

Q. — Does the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad plan to run a steam excursion through the Poconos this summer? If so, where can tickets and information be obtained?

R.H., Pocono Summit.

A. — We contacted Erie-Lackawanna officials and they have no knowledge of any planned excursions through the Poconos on their lines or anyone else's.

Q. — I am aware of the local burning ordinance in Stroud Township. Is there any restriction in the burning of large quantities of animal waste in a residential area? The odor is atrocious on a hot summer day.

S.O., Stroud Township

A. — There most certainly is a restriction against burning such materials. The Stroud Township Burning Ordinance, number 94, strictly prohibits the burning of garbage or offal. Stroud Township Supervisor James Somers advised you should contact the Stroud Township Police Department the next time such burning takes place and the officers will correct the problem immediately.

Your name will be held in confidence unless you wish to sign a formal complaint, at which time it becomes a matter of public record. The boroughs of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg also prohibit the burning of garbage and offal and all similar complaints in these areas will be handled accordingly.

Johnny Cash . . . crowd pleaser.

Fewer than expected at gate

Music fans Cash in on Johnny's talent

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

LONG POND — A hand clapping, foot stomping crowd of 6,000 at Saturday night's Johnny Cash Concert at Pocono International Raceway substituted enthusiasm for their lower than anticipated numbers.

The four hour show, titled the Johnny Cash Gospel and Country Festival drew music lovers from as far away as New England to hear songs about rural poverty in the south and the saving grace of religious belief.

Whether it was a proven Cash standard or the latest piece of picking from Nashville's music city row, every song struck a responsive chord among the orderly middle aged fans sprinkled with gray-hairs and long-hairs.

William R. Marvel, director and public relations manager for the raceway, described the crowd as "very orderly" and composed of "many rural people".

This second concert to be sponsored by Concert 10, a New York promotional company, struck a sharp contrast to the first music fest the firm brought to the Poconos in the form of a rock festival last July 8.

In that 12 hour gathering five weeks ago, some 200,000 young people flocked to the area, snarling traffic for 35 miles and leaving the mountains swamped by debris and abandoned automobiles.

For Saturday's concert, only a skeleton security force was necessary and traffic flowed with ease to and from the raceway.

Often loud in their enthusiasm, the country music followers never let their adoration of the established performers get out of hand.

Throughout the concert, the audience was permitted to crowd near the stage on all sides and line the route between the platform and the dressing room located in the raceway garage area.

Autograph seekers and photo snappers easily handed their programs to the stars moving to and from the stage and cameras streamed to security personnel on stage for a quick trigger snap of the singers in action.

While Cash balanced atop a speaker, framed by three spotlights, singing a narration of his youth in Arkansas, several young fans backstage chatted with his wife, June Carter, and the Carter Family who were waiting for their moment to perform.

After a gospel music performance and some nostalgic early rock from the Statler Brothers, Carl Perkins, the Oak Ridge Boys and the unmistakable guitar of the Tennessee Three, Cash took the stage around 8:45 p.m. dressed in black with his guitar flung across his back.

As the crowd howled and flashbulbs popped, the six foot two singing star curled his upper lip into a smile and paced the stage front, leading into his most recent big seller "Boy Named Sue".

The crowd had what they came to see and Cash circled the stage to make sure everyone got a look.

If there was any dissatisfaction with the second Concert 10 music concert, it was scattered among a portion of the audience seated behind the stage who could only see the performers' backs for most of the show.

But as a number of the stars moved to the back microphones and Cash frequently played to the rear audience, that complaint was heard less often and was replaced by another:

That the four hour concert was all too brief and the crowd cried out for more.

Teachers' pact being reviewed

STROUDSBURG — Contract negotiations between teachers and school officials in the Stroudsburg Area School District are still in the hands of a state appointed fact finder.

Appointed by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board July 17, Dr. Morrison Handsaker is currently reviewing testimony from three days of hearings held following his appointment.

His report, due Aug. 21, will be reviewed by both parties in the contract talks who have 10 days to accept or reject the findings.

"I have a feeling that unless the school board does accept the fact finder's report, we will be on strike, but that is only my own personal opinion," said Kenneth Lee, president of the teachers' association and chief negotiator.

If no agreement can be reached on the fact finder's report, binding arbitration can be requested, Lee said. He said, however, no school board in Pennsylvania has yet agreed to arbitration to his knowledge.

Lee said he would recommend arbitration if the report is not satisfactory.

The decision to accept or reject the report will be due the same day as the contract, Aug. 31.

Motorists injured in crash

HAWLEY — Two persons were admitted to Wayne Memorial Hospital in Honesdale Sunday following a two-car accident at the intersection of Routes 6 and 507 in Hawley.

Mrs. Delores Wagner of Milton, and 71-year-old Ernest Aberhardt of Hawley were taken to the hospital by the Tafton Fire Department Ambulance. Aberhardt is in guarded condition with internal injuries and Mrs. Wagner is listed in satisfactory condition with back and chest injuries.

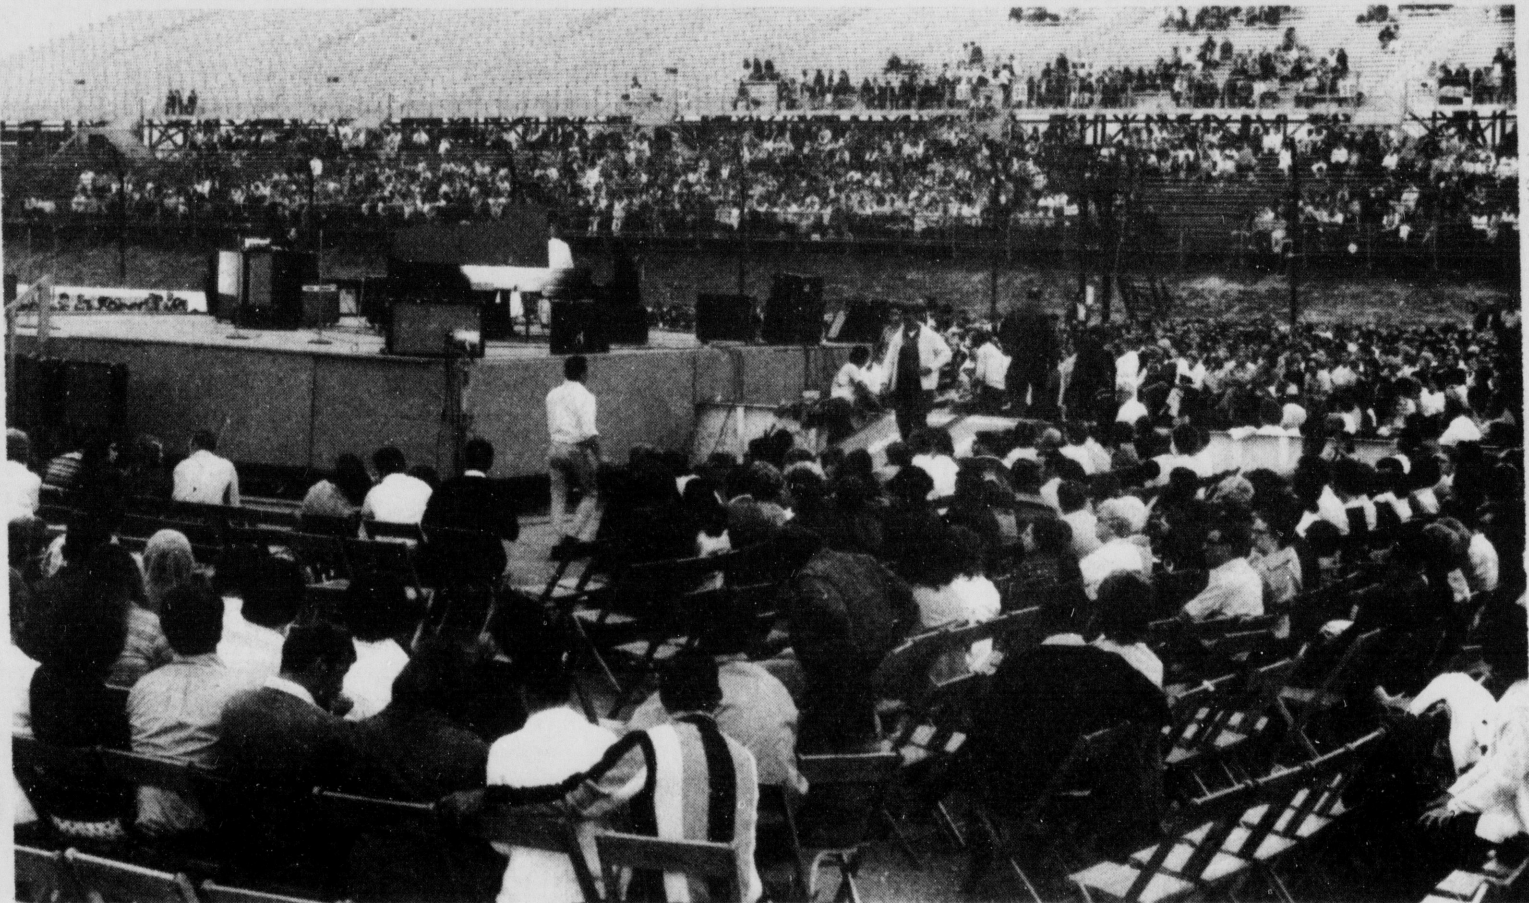

According to Pennsylvania State Police from the Milford barracks a car operated by Mrs. Wagner's husband, Eli, failed to halt at a stop sign at the intersection of Rt. 6 and 507. The northbound Wagner auto then collided with Aberhardt's eastbound vehicle on Rt. 6. Wagner escaped injury.

Two other occupants in the Wagner car were treated and released at the hospital for undisclosed injuries. They were Jeffrey Wagner, 19, and Kathy Hansen, also 19.

Student parking registration set

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg High School students who must drive to school are urged to get their parking spaces before the school year begins in order to help relieve some of the confusion that goes along with the first few days of school, James W. Hantjies, principal, announced.

Applications for parking privileges must be completed and signed by the parents of students. The application form may be picked up at the high school office any week day from 8:10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Six thousand persons listen to Johnny Cash Concert at Pocono International Raceway.

Driver arrested after crash

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 49-year-old Stroudsburg man was charged with driving under the influence of intoxicating beverages or narcotics and reckless driving Saturday night after he collided with another car on North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

William M. Lockley was charged by East Stroudsburg Borough Police when they investigated the accident near midnight Saturday.

The accident report states Lockley was traveling north on the street at a high rate of speed and veered into the path of a southbound car operated by Theodore Picciotti, of New Hope. Picciotti swerved to the right to avoid a collision but the two vehicles side-swiped.

E.S. man held for grand jury

TANNERSVILLE — District Magistrate Gerald Canfield Friday night bound an East Stroudsburg man over for grand jury action on charges of larceny of a construction site brought about by an investigation conducted by Pocono Township Police.

Franklin D. Rinker, of East Stroudsburg R.D., was released on $3,000 bond after a preliminary hearing at Squire Canfield's office Friday night. He is also charged with receiving stolen goods.

Kiddie feast

Scores of youngsters were treated to hot dogs, sodas and other refreshments by East Stroudsburg Borough during their annual party for all borough youngsters. It was a feast day and these two youngsters certainly didn't go away without having enough hot dogs.

East Bangor fire parade ends week's Jubilee events

EAST BANGOR — The East Bangor Fire Company topped off its week-long jubilee activities Saturday with a parade celebrating the unit's 75th anniversary.

A total of 21 different organizations were awarded prizes in 10 categories.

The Wharton Fire Department, Wharton, N.J. won first prize for the best appearing fire company with music. The Emmaus Fire Company was second.

The best appearing fire company without music was Pen Argyl. Mt. Bethel captured second place, Huntington third, and Wind Gap fourth.

First prize for the best appearing ladies' auxiliary went to Emmaus. Runners-up were Nazareth, Mansfield Township, and Washington Township.

The Wharton Fire Department was awarded the prize for coming the longest distance.

The Lucky Ladies Drum Corps took first prize as the best appearing organizations other than a fire company. The East Bangor Little League was second and the East Bangor scouts third.

The best appearing apparatus award went to the Nazareth Fire Company. Second place was awarded to the Lower Municipal Fire Company and third prize to Mt. Bethel.

Allentown's U.S. Marine band took first prize in the senior musical division. The Florida Legion band was second and the Old East Bangor band was third.

Dallet Drum Corps captured top honors in the junior musical division. Lucky Ladies Drum Corps finished second and the Broadcasters Drum and Bugle Corps third.

A special judges' award for an antique fire truck was won by William Hower.

The award for the best appearing float was won by the Palmer Township Ladies' Auxiliary.

East Bangor's volunteer unit was organized April 12, 1897, with John Bray serving as fire chief until 1900. Present fire chief Robert R. Davis, one of 16 other men to lead the organization since then, has served as chief since 1965.

The first truck for the company, acquired in 1932, is still operable. It is outmoded, however, and supplemented by two newer models.

Most of the unit's equipment is maintained by volunteer help, except when major parts are needed.

College trustee dies at 51

BANGOR — David Stoddard, 61, a trustee and vice president of the East Stroudsburg State College board of trustees and executive vice president and treasurer of Stoddard Slate Companies, Pen Argyl, died Sunday morning at his Bangor home after a lengthy illness.

He is survived by his widow, Inez Smith Stoddard.

Born in Bangor, Stoddard was a son of the late David and Elizabeth Bennett Stoddard. He was a member of the Selective Service board of Northampton County and the executive committee of the Republican party of Northampton County. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention and past president of the Bangor school board.

Stoddard was a director on the board of trustees of the First National Bank of Bangor since 1963. He was past president of the Kiwanis Club in Bangor and a former member of the Elks Club in Bangor. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church, Bangor.

After attending public school in Atlantic City, N.J., Stoddard graduated from the Tome School for Boys, Port Deposit, Md. and the New Jersey School of Commerce.

Stoddard was a member of the Blue Lodge of the Bangor Masons and Bangor Royal Arch chapter 274. He was a representative to the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania.

A member of the Lehigh Consistory and executive committee, Stoddard was awarded the Scottish Right meritorious award in 1954.

He was a former member of Beauschant Commandry 94, Allentown, and the Regah Temple, Reading.

In addition to his widow, Stoddard is survived by a daughter, Mrs. David Muffley, Jr., Washington, D.C.; three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Brinton, Sr., Pen Argyl, Mrs. O.H. Peilly, Bangor, and Mrs. David Thomas, Levittown.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday from the Trinity Lutheran Church, Bangor. Interment will be in the St. John's Reformed Cemetery, Bangor. There will be no visitation.

Contributions may be made to the Heart Association, 509 Scott St., Stroudsburg.

Carlton captures 14th of year; Phils gain split with Montreal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Tim Foli singled in a pair of runs to lead Montreal to an 8-3 victory over Philadelphia Sunday in a doubleheader split after the Phillies had won the opener 2-1 behind Steve Carlton.

The Expos scored four times in the fourth to tag Billy Champion, 4-13, with his 10th straight loss. Balar Moore picked up his fourth victory with relief help from Mike Marshall who saved his 13th game.

The Expos started their big inning on a single by Ron Fairly and a walk to Tim McCarver. With two out Foli singled to right for one run and Moore singled for another. When the ball got past right fielder Roger Freed, Foli scored and Moore went to third. Ron Hunt singled to score Moore.

In the eighth, the Expos used a walk to Mike Jorgensen and singles by Ron Biley and Foli to score their fifth run.

Moore allowed only two hits through the first seven inning both were home runs Freed connected in the second after a walk to Greg Luzinski and Deron Johnson hit a solo homer in the seventh.

Carlton, 19-6, picked up his 14th straight victory in the opener missing a shutout when Balar homered in the fourth inning.

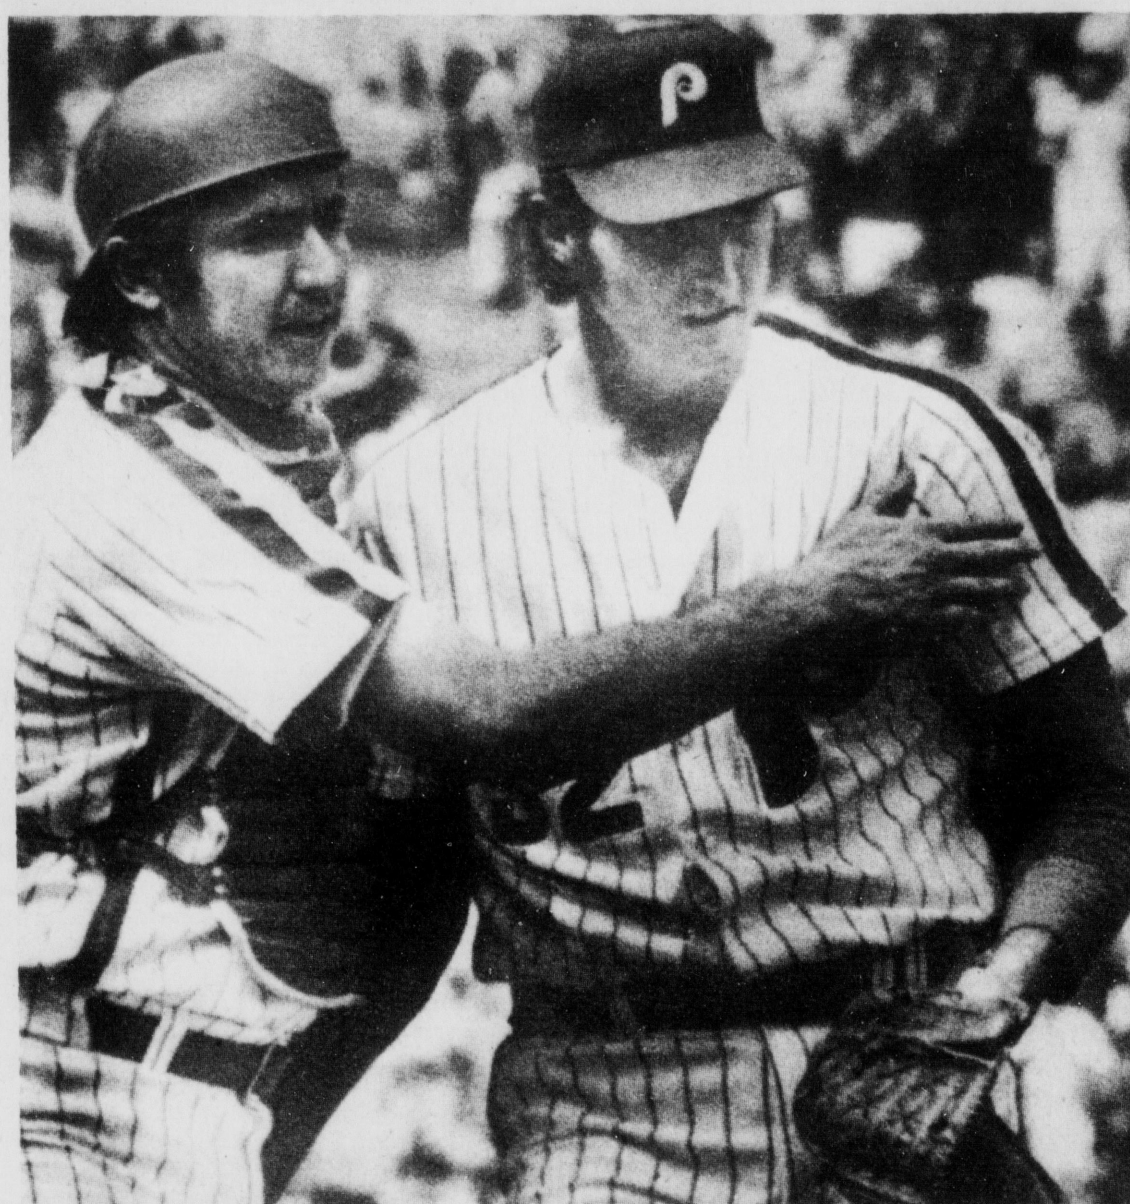

The Phillies scored twice in the first when Willie Montanez doubled in one run and Luzinski singled for another off loser Ernie McAnally, 1-13.

Pirates divide with Cards

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Pirates spotted St. Louis a four-run lead in the third inning, then stormed back behind the bat of Richie Hebner to defeat the Cardinals, 7-5, Sunday in the second game of a doubleheader after the Cardinals had taken the opener, 2-0, behind the five-hit pitching of Rick Wise.

The split enabled Pittsburgh to take a 10-game lead over the second place New York Mets in the National League East.

Hebner, who had three hits, scored two runs and had two RBI's, singled home Vic Davalillo and scored on Milt May's double in a three-run fourth.

In the Pirates' sixth, Dave Cash walked, Al Oliver doubled him home and after Willie Stargell was walked intentionally, Hebner doubled to score Oliver.

Yankees sweep Milwaukee before 56,238 spectators

NEW YORK (UPI)—Back-to-back home runs by Ron Blomberg and Bernie Allen in the seventh inning brought the New York Yankees to a 5-4 victory and a sweep of Sunday's doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers before a Bat Day crowd of 56,238, largest in the American League this season.

Blomberg, pinch-hitting for Fred Beene who picked up his first major league victory, homered after Felipe Alou had opened the inning with a single. Blomberg belted his 10th homer on the first pitch served by Jim Colborn into the rightfield seats. Allen followed with his fourth which proved to be the winning run as the Brewers battled back with one run in the ninth.

Ron Klimkowski was on the mound because Sparky Lyle had made his seventh appearance in eight days to pick up his 28th save in the opener which the Yanks won, 5-3 for Mel Stottlemyre's 12th victory.

The Yanks scored in the first inning of the nightcap on Allen's double and Roy White's single.

The Brewers scored twice in the fourth on a single by George Scott, Ollie Brown's double and Mike Ferraro's single.

They added a run in the fifth when Rick Auerbach doubled, stole third and scored on a wild pitch.

Gene Michael highlighted the Yankees' first-game victory with a bases-loaded triple in the second inning.

Johnny Ellis walked after singles by Bobby Murcer and Celerino Sanchez to load the bases and set the stage for Michael's base-clearing drive into the right centerfield alley. Stottlemyre drove home the fourth run of the inning with a squeeze bunt that scored Michael.

Oakland regains lead in division

OAKLAND (UPI)—Vida Blue pitched Oakland back into first place in the American League West with a four-hit shutout Sunday as the Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-0.

A first-inning single by Mike Epstein and bases-empty homers by Dave Duncan in the sixth and Bert Campaneris in the seventh accounted for the Oakland run as the A's moved a game ahead of the White Sox.

Three of the four hits off Blue were singles and the other was a double by Dick Allen. Blue, in winning his fifth game and third shutout compared to seven losses struck out three and walked only two and was helped by two double plays.

Stan Bahnsen went six plus innings and gave up eight of Oakland's 11 hits and suffered his 13th loss compared to his 15 victories. Mike Andrews led off with a single in the fourth but the first Oakland double play ended that threat and in the seventh, Allen doubled and Rich Reichardt walked but Oakland's second double play killed that inning.

After two out in the ninth, Blue walked Andrews but then ended the game when Allen flied out to right.

Leader in P.M. changes

SAYLORSBURG — For the first time this season, Saylorsburg is alone at the top of the Pocono Mountain League. But it took a 12 inning victory Sunday to do it.

Cal Kresge singled with two outs in the 12th to give Saylorsburg a 6-5 victory over Kunkletown. The victory, coupled with Bowmanstown's 14-6 loss to Reeders, gives Saylorsburg a one-game edge over Reeders.

Dodgers gain 5-3 victory

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Willie Davis' second home run of the game, a three-run clout over the rightfield wall in the eighth inning, pulled the Los Angeles Dodgers from behind to a 5-3 victory over the San Diego Padres Sunday.

Davis, now with 12 homers this season, accounted for the first Dodger run in the fourth inning with his first homer of the contest.

Los Angeles added an insurance tally in the ninth on a double by Maury Wills, an infield single by Lee Lacy and Bill Buckner's single.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Europe at random . . . The Queen Elizabeth 2 floated a shipload of folks who seemed apathetic about Sabbath worship; Jews have their own tiny synagogue aboard but it did so-so Sat. business; Catholics and Protestants shared the movie theater Sunday morning, separately; it wasn't SRO there either . . . No more big "Ship's Pool" a la the rich prizes of yesteryear: best was a "hat" pool, meaning ten equal contributors ($10) and a waiter extracted one card; our shipboard friend, Mr. Winkelman won the $100 (the old ship's pools often went above $10,000) and managed to top the $100 hat trick by winning at Bingo; seems no big gambling pools are countenanced aboard now that the QE2 carries its own gambling casino, with roulette, craps, chemin de fer and "21" operated by a London gambling syndicate . . . It's a mini-Las Vegas with far better manners, guests in dinner clothes mostly, an elegant sight . . . Authorities never solved the robbery of the QE2's casino vault last winter during the cruise season; it was considered an inside job and tho no one could be pinned down, there were several quiet sackings of casino bosses.

In Rome, we sat high in the Alban Hills trying to tune in the Democratic convention via Voice of America, but it was mostly futile except for a few 1 a.m. news scraps . . .

Our old radio sport of DXing (twiddling dials to haul in distant stations) brought in overwhelmingly American jazz from unlikely places; such as Louis Armstrong from Munich, the unmistakably tuneless glamor of Marlene Dietrich attacking "Fallin' in Luff Again" from Zagreb, Nat King Cole from Yugoslavia, endless American record stars and fair imitations thereof from all over Germany, what seemed dreary propaganda from Russia leavened by an occasional ancient-type small chamber orchestra wavering through pseudo-popular pieces and then wham! Shostakovich brilliantly via great symphonic sounds.

Swedish stations seemed to fling the most modern jazz noises into the air, modern up to, say, Miles Davis; an isolated Charlie Parker recording and one fiddle acrobatic by the late Stuff Smith; not easy to hold the sound steady however.

Interesting, the slow, deliberate, careful enunciation of speakers on the VOA, usefully simple for primitive English learners behind the Iron Curtain; but it sounded consistently as if they were speaking to puppies.

Italy's hosting some 5 million tourists this year, spending some $4 billion, and of all European countries, the Italians in shops and hotels and restaurants alone seem appreciative always to the point of warm civility.

We raved about Ristorante Augustea in yesterday's column; lots of others are worth tipping our tastebuds in gustatory appreciation.

The Caffè Greco on Via Condotti remains a splendid meeting place if somewhat less than superb in food: its sandwiches by N.Y. standards are skimpy (one slice of ham, or cheese, seems tasteless in a hotdog-size roll) but the drinks are okay, from tea or Cokes to local orange and concoctions; it's been right there hard by the Spanish Steps at 86 Via Condotti, across from Gucci's at least since 1742, according to the untidy memoirs of Giacomo Casanova . . . Couple of years ago, it started losing money (it's in the highest-rent commercial district in Rome, comparable to 5th Ave. in the 50s) and the City of Rome saved it from a fate worse than debt a short while ago, first dubbing it a national monument, finally taking it over and operating it, for it was about to be turned into a show shop, and that simply wouldn't do right by the shades of so many ghostly geniuses . . . It's marvelous for its ambience if not its sandwiches and hauls in not only tourists but Romans, probably the most popular meeting place for civilized folk; the hippies congregate in smelly disarray still on the otherwise lovely Spanish Steps.

Last year Rome had scads of strikes and unrest but still hiked tourism 11 per cent; this year early statistics suggests a boost of 20 per cent compared to that . . . Organized tourism (charter planes, busloads of tourists) causes a love-hate reaction in hotels: rooms, meals, tours, etc. are prepared for the hordes; de luxe hotels fear it will debase the finest personal service which separates great European tradition from computerized impersonal American efficiency; but that's where the big money is, so it is spreading — wildly.

The American dollar is in the foreign doghouse: the travel agency which arranged our Pan-Am tickets back to N.Y. City pleaded with us to cash our check elsewhere and pay them in lire; seems it takes up to 90 days for a U.S. check to clear "and we're frightened of the shaky money market," we were told . . . It's expected the lire momentarily will devalue again, probably early in the fall . . . Meanwhile Roman restaurants haven't zoomed their prices much; slightly but still considerably below U.S., and certainly N.Y. City levels.

Ristorante G. Ranieri, at 26 Via Mario de Fiori, is an elegant eatery with fine Roman food in the middle of Old Rome; also moderate by U.S. levels.

Nino's at 11 Via Borgognona has two torrid specialties we recommend enthusiastically to experimental palates: penne all'arrabbiata (an "angry" pasta) for sturdy tummies; ditto bistecca di costa all'arrabbiata, a steak sizzled in the same garlic-herbs-peppers sauce; and it's beautiful when it's angry.

For a fine day in the sun and water, motor out to Marino, 14 miles south of Rome, and have lunch at Helio Cabala and a swim before and after (look around, the lazy fellow reading under the umbrella might be me); lunch price covers your swim, too . . . Up in the nearby mountain town of Frascati (great wine) is Ristorante Cacciani, run by Armando and Tommaso Cacciani, everything fresh, tasty, a see-through glass kitchen wall where you can watch the pasta being made and just-caught fish wriggling. It's a fresh memory that makes us wish we were back there again. Oh, well — next year.

Stephen Birmingham, who made a fortune with books about U.S. Jews (Our Crowd, The Grantees), next takes on prominent U.S. Irish Catholics . . . Vivian Vance of the old Lucille Ball shows is calling her memoirs "There's a Hill Beyond the Hill Beyond the Hill"; that an old song? From what show? Maybe Viv was in it; she started as a singer.

No rings

By Jean Adams

RING ROW: (Comment) All my girl friends have steady boy friends and I could have one, too, but my mother ruined it. This boy gave me a ring. I was so excited. But when I got home my mother asked me, "Where did you get that ring."

I said, "From a boy."
She said, "You are too young to go with a boy. That ring is too expensive. Plus if boys see you are going steady they won't bother with you."

I liked this boy and he liked me, but now it's the end. I'm really depressed.

15 and Finished in Florida.

(A.) Many parents do not realize what teen-age giving of rings signifies today. It is a quite mild custom and seldom permanent. I say this not to make light of your disappointment but to demonstrate to parents that when they make a big fuss over a ring they are likely to be turning a small incident into a big and troublesome problem.

I don't think you are too young to wear a boy's ring if you want to. I do think you'd have more fun free, but you should be permitted to make the choice yourself.

ROBBED: (Q.) I started liking this dude, so we started talking. Well, all of a sudden, this so-called friend of mine started telling all sorts of lies to him about things I had said. She told him things I had never said at all.

This is not the first time she has done this. I know now why she does it. She wants all the boys to herself. Now she is going with this one.

She was my best friend and I trusted her. This has been a nightmare to me. I haven't eaten or slept. What can I do to get over it?

Tricked in Washington, D.C.

(A.) There is a saying that experience is a hard teacher. You have had an experience. You have learned. Put the bitterness behind you. But remember the lesson. You now know this girl is predatory, a huntress who violates the game rules. Some girls are like that. Guard against them. Keep your boy friends away from them.

BABY NEAR: (Q.) I love Roger and he loves me. He is 21 and I am 16 and next month we are going to have a baby. I will be 17 then and we want so very much to be married.

My mother wants us to. But my father doesn't. He calls Roger and me dirty names and says Roger is no good. He says he hopes I die during childbirth. What should I do?

DelVal division winners

MILFORD — Mrs. Ann Wenzel, of Milford, topped all competition Friday earning 129 points in the foods division of the Delaware Valley Fair and Farm Show.

Mrs. Wenzel will receive $10 from the Delaware Valley Fair Association as a special prize for earning the greatest number of points in the foods category. She also will be given $30.75 in prize money for individual entries in that division.

Some of Mrs. Wenzel's prize winning foods included canned fruits, white layer cake, cinnamon rolls, chocolate cake, novelty cake, pumpkin pie, apple pie, meringue pie, candy fudge, white bread and dropped cookies.

Bernard Belli, of Shohola Falls, captured the first prize in the vegetable division with 52 points. Belli will receive $10 for earning the greatest number of points in the vegetable division and $10 for individual entries.

Belli's celery, beets, lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower, shallots and squash all took first place honors.

The winner in the flower arrangement division was Mrs. Marilyn Tschopp, of Milford, with 118 points. Mrs. Tschopp will receive a total of $40.25 in special and individual entry prize money.

Receiving the greatest number of the points in the clothing division was Mrs. Lucy L. Kerrigan, of Milford, with a total of 85 points. Some of Mrs. Kerrigan's prize winning clothing included a two-piece dress, men's and boy's slacks, man's shirt, woven tablecloth, afghan, knitted baby set and knitted baby sweater.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) Fine planetary influences back your efforts now. Especially favored: Scientific and technical pursuits, educational and literary interests.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) Through frank expression of ideas and coordinated effort, you can best handle yourself and others now. If unexpected situations arise, preserve equilibrium, perspective, humor.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) Use a bit of artistry to relieve the monotony of routine. Don't hesitate to embark on a new venture if it really shows promise.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) You will have the capacity to produce a great deal now, but you could offset it by going off on tangents or wasting time on pointless argument. Care!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) Handle routine with alacrity. Don't be distracted by nonessentials. Maneuver practically, in decisive manner.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) Good influences! Day spells action, determination. Astute planning advised. Give new ventures a "dry run" before actual launching.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) Be careful not to shunt aside the advice of "lesser lights." Seeing things from a different view, they just could be able to give some valuable suggestions.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) Review finances, domestic situations, future needs. There may be room for improvement. If an idea you've had proves unworkable, aim to change it immediately.

November 23 to December

21 (Sagittarius) Don't shift from one plan or activity to another without reason. Don't make promises you cannot keep and do not aim for the unreasonable. A day for caution!

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) Overcome any hesitancy that could prevent you from producing in the top form you can. Aim for special achievement rather than accomplishment by volume.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) Much deep thinking should go into this day. There will be proposals and counter-proposals. Do not be swayed by emotionalism or bias. Let good judgment be your guide.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) Note Aquarius. Your outlook similar. Be careful not to misinterpret others' meanings and not to be misunderstood yourself. Shun gossip.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a magnetic personality, vitality and an unusual gift of leadership. You are so extremely versatile that you could succeed in almost any field which appeals to you and for which you educate yourself. However, you would probably do your best in one of the professions. In such case, it will be important to remember, however, that you must curb an instinctive tendency to be dogmatic, or you could alienate associates. Your flair for the dramatic could make you an excellent trial lawyer or, on the stage, an heroic actor. You could also succeed at writing and (or) music. Birthdate of: John Galsworthy and Sir Walter Besant, Eng. authors.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE I.R.S.
IS YOUR FRIEND.

I.R.S. Independent Rear Suspension. An expensive item not found on many other cars like Datsun. We offer overhead cam engine and safety front disc brakes, too. Standard. Datsun 510. It has expensive features but it doesn't cost a lot.
Special Offer: Test drive a Datsun before
Oct. 15, and we'll pay to have a tree planted for you by the U.S. Forest Service in a national forest. And give you a free Ansel Adams poster, too. Drive a Datsun. Plant a tree. Nice for both of us!
